The Aftermath

👁 46   ✓ 2   ★ 4

Chapter 1 by Hashbrown Productions

It was the year 2100, and the world was dark. The disease broke out almost 4 years ago starting in New York. It slowly spread throughout the whole entire world. It turned what used to be human beings into terrible flesh-eating monsters.

Who am I? I am just a 16-year-old boy who luckily had a dad in the marines. He was the last family I had. He taught me how to take care of myself in this apocalypse until he died a couple months back. We took shelter in the empire state building in New York city. My name is Jason Monroe and I am one of the few survivors of The Aftermath.

Chapter 2 by Elizabeth Stevens

I was in the empire state building when I heard a sound down stairs. I looked at the cameras I set up and the lerkers (what I call those things). I started to worry because they went by some of the traps that I set up.

'what am I suppose to do, they never get this far what if they get to me? Maybe I should turn the TV's on behind the traps.'

I turned the TV on and the larker went to it and he got stuck in the trap. Thank god.

well at least I still have some memory groups around here. Since my dad died I haven't really thought of joining a group but maybe I should. That's where it all happened.
